COUNTRY HOME IS BURNED.

McReynolds Dwelling On
Clarksville Pike
Destroyed.

CAUSED BY A FLUE.

One Of The Prettiest Farm
Houses In That Part
Of The County.

The beautiful country home of Mr. Thos. J. McReynolds, six miles from the city on the Clarksville pike, was burned Saturday afternoon.

It is supposed the fire originated from the burning out of a chimney. When discovered the upper part of the house was in flames and nothing could be done to check them.

The house was occupied by Mr. M. O. Kimerlin, who succeeded in getting out most of his household effects, but still sustained a loss of $200 or more on things that could not be moved in time.

The building was insured for $2,500, but this will not cover the loss by $2,000 or $2,500.

The house was a Gothic style cottage, one and a half stories, with a basement. It contained seven or eight rooms and was comparatively new. It was built by Mr. Jas. A. Radford ten or twelve years ago, who spared no pains to make it a beautiful and desirable country home. It was built to replace a house that was burned.

Mr. McReynolds also lost about $200 worth of furniture stored in the attic.

He will rebuild at once. In the meantime Mr. Kimerlin and his family are occupying an office in the yard that did not burn.

Value of Insurance.

Fires originate in unexpected places and from unknown causes. Doubtless some one who reads this article will sustain the next loss.

Are YOU insured and have you the best insurance money can buy? The Giant Insurance Agency (Incorporated), settles their losses promptly and equitably and guarantees to sell their policies at as low rate as any company doing business. Office in First National Bank building. Both 'phones.

Respectfully submitted this 29th day of November, 1908.

Approved November 29th, by unanimous vote of the Organized Bible Class.

LYON COUNTY RESOLUTIONS WENT THROUGH WITH A WHOOP

Great Gathering of Farmers and a Later Meeting Addressed by the Hon. Joseph E. Washington, of Tennessee.

The meeting called yesterday by "Farmers" turned out to be such a big affair that two meetings were held. Notwithstanding the rain, which fell all during the forenoon, the court house was packed to overflowing at 1:30 o'clock with farmers. Probably 800 men were present, every part of the room being filled until standing room was at a premium.

The meeting was called to order by ex-sheriff L. R. Davis, of Crofton, and on motion Esq. B. F. Fuller, of Larkin, was elected chairman. Mr. Fuller said he came as a farmer in favor of the association, but with a desire to sell his tobacco to secure the money needed for living expenses. He did not want to pick a fuss with any one, but did want the association to sell both the old and new crops and sell it so the farmer could get the most for his money.

The organization was completed by the election of B. F. Wood, of Bainbridge, Secretary.

The resolutions known as the "Lyon Resolutions" were then offered by Frank Pool, of Era.

The Lyon county resolutions demanded that the 1908 crop be sold loose by the association, and complained of the treatment accorded in the past and closing with a pledge not to sign another crop unless the demands made were complied with.

At the conclusion of the reading of the resolutions W. T. Davis, of Crofton, moved their adoption and they were adopted by a storm of ayes, followed by three or four noes.

A motion was then put to adjourn and the meeting adjourned, while cries were made for "Washington" by association members who did not favor the resolutions. A large part of the crowd remained and Mr. Jos. E. Washington, of Tennessee, took the stand and made a lengthy and impassioned appeal to the members not to be led away from their organization.

He claimed that the resolutions were a trap to catch the unwary and urged farmers to go slow or they would lend their aid to building up the old monopoly that oppressed them 4 years ago. He reviewed at length the conditions of 1903 and 1904 and contrasted the prices received this year with those of the past.

He referred to the recent Burley sale and declared that the grievances complained of could not be remedied by holding public meetings but the proper plan was to go before the officers of the association for correction. If loose sales were resumed, the farmer would have no more chance to be prosperous than a cat would have to scratch out of hell without claws.

He said the association had done its business in the open and not in some dark chamber, or in some back room of a bank in Hopkinsville.

The association's one per cent. was what was hurting those who were knocked out of their big profits.

If you pull down the bars now, the trust buyers will think you are demoralized and the Imperial Co. instead of buying 10,000,000 pounds now, will wait, expecting to get your tobacco cheaper after awhile.

As the speaker wound up he gradually removed one garment after another until he stood in his shirt sleeves, with collar unbuttoned.

He declared that he was opposed to every form of lawlessness. He called upon any man who wanted to be a Benedict Arnold or a Judas Iscariot to hold up his hand.

He then called upon those who endorsed his sentiments to hold up their hands and a large portion of the crowd did so. He paid a glowing tribute to General Manager Ewing in closing.

He closed with a final appeal not to desert the ship, and not to take a dose of castor oil, wrapped up in sweetmeats.

Mr. Washington spoke for about an hour.

HUGH LYON'S LETTER AND COL. EWING'S ANSWERS

Questions and Answers Concerning Association Matters.

TEN ANSWERS GIVEN.

Eddyville Man's Letter Given Detailed Replies by Head of Association.

The following questions by Hugh Lyon, of Eddyville, and answers by Col. F. G. Ewing, give the latest phases of the controversy between these gentlemen:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q. 1. Was the Planters' Protective Association organized to promote the welfare of the tobacco grower or to promote the welfare of its officials?

Ans. For the welfare of the members of the Association. The officers are only employed to do the work.

Q. 2. Aren't the members of the Association entitled to a report of the business and transactions of the Association?

Ans. They are, as far as consistent with the business of the Association. Every director has a full itemized statement of all that is done and he can and will enlighten any member in his county.

Q. 3. Will you hand each tobacco grower $100 and accept his receipt?

Ans. We will not, because our charter of incorporation can do nothing but act as selling agents for those who pledge their tobacco.

Q. 4.—Do you think the Association will live long under the present methods and conditions?

Ans. We certainly do.

Q. 5. Do you not know that the voice of the tobacco growers and the voice of all other workmen must be respected?

Ans. We do and each member of the Association has through his director a voice and vote on all questions coming before the Board of Directors.

Q. 6. You state in your article in the Tobacco Plant of November 12 that other counties have sold out. Then why is it impracticable for Lyon or any county to sell out?

Ans. No county has sold out its tobacco except in accordance with such rules and regulations as have been adopted by the Board of Directors.

Q. 7. Do you want us to drive our merchants to the wall, cramp our banking institutions, starve ourselves, say our prayers and die, just to gratify our desire to overthrow the American Tobacco Trust?

Ans.—We do not.

Q. 8. Don't you know that we will have more respect for you if you will have the same for us?

Ans. We have for your county and its people the same consideration as for all others who are members of the Association.

Q. 9. Will you and the Association obligate yourselves to do for us as much as you want us to obligate

HAVE BEGUN REHEARSALS

For the Production of "The Hall of Fame," Production at Tabernacle.

HOME TALENT USED.

Director is at Work With Those Who Take Part—Music Up-to-Date.

Active rehearsals for the "Hall of Fame," the historical pageant production which is to be given under the auspices of the Tabernacle association and the W. O. W. at the tabernacle, Thursday evening, December 8th, are well under way.

The director, Mr. F. C. Osborn, had some of the young ladies, who are to take part in the Cleopatra in hand at the hall of the W. O. W. yesterday afternoon and taught them one of the many pretty dances used in that scene.

In the evening the soloists who are among the singers of the city, looked over the music and the general opinion was that it was of an unusual high order as well as pretty and useful.

Within a few days the costumes will arrive by express and be distributed among the people who take part. Among the characters represented in the production are Cleopatra, Helen of Troy, Ruth, Queen Elizabeth, Samantha Allen, Queen Victoria, besides a host of others historically well known.

Much of the music is from the latest musical productions of both New York and Chicago, and the people of Hopkinsville will have the advantage over their neighboring cities of hearing the most popular airs of the metropolitan centers fully a year in advance.

One of the prettiest scenes is "Mother Goose and Her Children." In this scene the children are not taught to act but are led into it in a whole-hearted natural manner that makes the whole scene a most joyous one.

By the first of the week the cards announcing the entertainment will be placed in the store windows of the city and the tickets will be on sale.

A BARGAIN SALE.

The Stocks Attracted Her, and She Bought Them While Cheap.

"I have done more or less speculating all my life," said Jones, "but I have made up my mind now to give it up. One speculator in the family is enough, and my wife seems to have a system that is a sure winner. Some time ago the general situation looked bearish to me. I hesitated a few days, but the more I thought it over the more I became convinced that the market was in for a big slump. Conditions were right, the trade was nervous, corn injured, the big steel trust was facing a strike, and I thought I saw certain signs that indicated that several of the big pools were getting tired of the load that they were carrying and were preparing to stand from under.

"Well, I put out a pretty stiff short line for me, and then the market, as if only waiting for me to get in, commenced booming. The result was that I got badly plucked before I could get out. Misery loves company, as the old saying goes. Besides, I had to account to my wife for the gum face that I was wearing, so I made a clean breast of the whole matter.

"Mercy!" she cried, "I don't see how you lost, Wpy. I made several hundred dollars!"

"You did?" I almost yelled.

"Why, yes," she answered innocently. "You said one morning at the breakfast table that stocks looked like a big sale, and you know I dearly love a bargain sale, so I bought some X. Y. Z. stock with the pin money that I had saved."

"I remember making the remark," I said grimly, "but I am not aware that I ever mentioned X. Y. Z. as being particularly desirable."

"Of course you didn't," she answered. "I looked over all the stock that they had for sale and found I could buy X. Y. Z. for 40 cents, so I took that. You'll let me know when they have another bargain sale, won't you, deary?"

"Now, in the face of that, how can a man sit calmly down and reason out which way the stock market is going?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Language of Science.

"I must say," remarked the plain, everyday man, "that I feel as if I had a cold in the head, and I'm so hoarse I can hardly speak."

"I see," answered the scientist. "You are suffering from a slight catarrh, causing congestion of the mucous membrane and suffusion of the optical organs and inducing a somewhat phlogistic condition of the epiglottis. Perhaps, however, you had better send for a physician."

"Send for a physician? No. I don't want a doctor. Send for an interpreter."—Minneapolis Journal.

Garden Repartee.

"My eyes," exclaimed the potato, "but this is poor soil for a garden."

"That's right," said the onion. "I don't get along worth a cent, and I'm losing strength every day."

"I'm going to leave," said the cabbage. "I'll never be able to get a head here."

"This spot isn't fit for a berrying ground," said the strawberry. "But here comes the sun, and we'll have to dry up."—Houston Post.

ABOUT MABEL.

Mabel puzzles me a lot. Mabel's changesable. I mean, pretty Mabel, who is not any more than fair eighteen. Mabel has such ruby lips. Oh, her charms are very smart! Last year she had rounded hips. This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's eyes are azure blue. Mabel's cheeks are rosy pink. She would take your heart from you if she only smiled. I think. Yet a flicker made the lips. Through the world in ways uncanny. Last year she had rounded hips. This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's smile is still the same. Mabel says her heart is mine. Seeing her you would not blame me for kneeling at her shrine. But the changes Mabel slips. Over me are far too many. Last year she had rounded hips. This year Mabel hasn't any.

The Ingenious Maiden.

She—Why don't you marry, Mr. Scratch?

He—I'm too nervous, and a faint heart never won a fair lady, don't ever know.

She—Yes, but I'm dark.—Tattler.

Getting a Substitute.

"Never get out of trouble by bringing it on some one else," remarked a man on the train the other day. "I remember," he continued, "when I was a small boy I was one day going along the road when I came upon a man holding a ram by the horns. As I came up he said, 'Here, sonny, hold this ram till I climb over the fence and unlock the gate.' I took hold of the ram, and he went over the fence. When safely over he said: 'Thanks. I've been holding him for an hour. I hope you get rid of him as easily as I did.'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Not Fit For Publication.

"Isn't it scandalous about the Wappaleys?"

"What about them? I understand that Mrs. Wappalee has secured a divorce, but I haven't learned any of the particulars."

"Nobody else has. The case is such a mystery case that the records have all been hidden."—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Was a Mean Man.

"What's the matter now?"

"Before we were married you used to steal things from me."

"You mean when your face was turned away?"

"Yes."

"Well, if you'll turn your face away I'll see if I can get up enough courage to steal one now."—Houston Post.

The Knowledge That Hurts.

Towne—So Dumbley married a college woman. My, it must be fierce for him to be tied to a woman who knows so much that he doesn't know!

Striving to Please.

"Yes," said the housewife, "yours is a sad story. But it isn't the same story you told last year."

"Well, lady," answered Plodding Pete, "you surely wouldn't expect a man to go all that time and not show any improvement!"—Washington Star.

A Strictly Feminine Comment.

A Great Difference.

"Margaret, it was very naughty of you to make such a fuss. You said if I'd buy you that new doll you'd go to the dentist's without a murmur."

"I didn't murmur, murmur. I screamed."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Wise Youth.

"Come," said the wisest rounder, "get in the push and be a high flier."

"Not me," replied the wise youth. "I've noticed that it is usually the high flier who drops the hardest."—Pittsburg Post.

A Mizup.

"What made Miss Flip look so sour at the ball last night?"

"Probably because she was in a pickle at her pretty rival's being so successful in her preserves."—Baltimore American.

Why He Didn't Know Him.

"Did you ever notice," remarked the man who always notices, "in how many suburban towns the railroad serves not only as a means of transportation, but as a dividing line socially?"

"The reason? Why, I dare say it is founded on the fact that land on one side of the railroad is generally more desirable for residence than on the other. Therefore it commands a better price, and that section of the population is apt to be a bit more select."

"I asked a friend today, for example, whether he knew a certain person who was a newcomer in his town. 'No,' said he. 'I guess he must live on the other side of the railroad track.'"

"There you are. It was natural he should not know him. The steel rails were not unlike a Chinese wall."—New York Globe.

Little Bobbie is a faithful attendant in the "baby class" at Sunday school. One day, when the teacher called upon him to recite the Lord's Prayer, he started bravely, floundered, started again, and finally gave up, saying: "Teacher, I can't say it, I'm so out of practice."

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA CURE.

Dread Disease Yields to a Simple Surgical Operation.

Locomotor ataxia, the nervous disease puzzle of the medical profession, can be positively cured by simple surgical methods, according to Dr. Le Grand N. Denlow of New York, who recently read a paper on the subject before the Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Denlow claims that in thirty cases he has treated during the last four years he has never missed a cure and there has not been a single relapse. He declares his discovery came after thirty-two years' investigation of the disease.

Dr. Denlow assured the forty members of the academy who heard him that in every one of the thirty cases of ataxia or locomotor ataxia he had found lesions or erosions along the urinary tract. From this he argued that these lesions were the cause of the disease. He examined with the ordinary surgical instruments, located the lesions, treated them until they disappeared and found, according to his statement, that with their disappearance the ataxia also disappeared.

Dr. Denlow gave as his theory of the cause of the disease that the lesions or erosions were responsible for the creation of a sensory impulse in the region affected and as a result of these continuous sensory impulses year after year the trouble was finally conveyed to the roots of the spinal cord. He ascribed to the disease a purely physical cause and declared that, as the best battery gave out through constant use, so must the spinal cord after these sensory attacks.

The thirty cases treated by Dr. Denlow include ten sent to him by the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Some of the thirty were described as just able to shuffle along alone, others moved with the aid of canes, others with attendants, and others were unable to leave their beds.

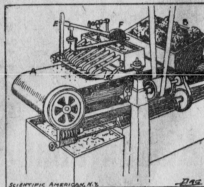

Dr. Denlow said he had cured them all and had no fear that he could not cure others.

ORE CONCENTRATOR.

Improved Machine Prevents Washing Away of Fine Material.

With a view of preventing the fine material from being washed away with the tailings and thus insuring complete saving of the concentrates, an ore concentrator has recently been invented in which the water is intermittently applied, permitting the concentrates to pass the impact line undisturbed. The water first washes the concentrates forward, then, flowing back down upon the apron, washes out the material contained therein.

In the accompanying engraving the apron or belt which carries the material to be concentrated is indicated at A. The belt inches upward in the direction of travel—that is, toward the forward end. At B is a hopper, which serves to distribute the material on to the belt. In front of the distributor is a reservoir C, from which water is fed through a series of chutes to a trough. D. The latter is journaled in brackets projecting from the reservoir. By means of a link, E, the trough is connected to a lever, which carries the counterweight F. Normally this counterweight serves to keep the trough in position to hold the water that pours in from the reservoir, but when the trough is tilted to the brim the counterweight is overbalanced and the trough is filled over, spilling the water in a sheet on the belt below. As stated above, such portion of the concentrates as has passed the impact line of the water during the time of filling is washed forward, and then the apron smoothly washes the onward moving material. In the meantime the trough recovers its normal position immediately and begins to fill for the next discharge. The inventor of this improved ore concentrator is Gilbert H. Davidson of Morenci, Ariz.

Peru's Standard Time. By a decree of the government of Peru issued by President Pardo the time of the seventy-fifth meridian west of Greenwich was on July 25 adopted as the national standard time for the whole of Peru. The meridian is only a few miles from that of Lima and runs almost exactly through the middle of the country. All timepieces throughout Peru will now coincide with those in the United States where the American time is kept. Peru is the first South American republic to adopt the world standard.

Ozone a Corrosive.

As pure ozone for disinfection is likely soon to be produced in the home, Sir Oliver Lodge gives warning that should only be inhaled when properly diluted. It is a powerful corrosive, and he suffered from nasal catarrh for years as a result of its incautious inhalation.

Many Colors of Amber.

Although it is a popular notion that amber always is yellow, it is also found black, brown, green and white in color.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Hopkinsville Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes or any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Hopkinsville citizen says:

Mrs. W. C. Owen, 212 E. Fourteenth street, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as an excellent remedy for kidney complaints. I speak, too, for them in behalf of my husband, who was cured of backache of a severe nature some two years ago, when we were living at Carville, Ky. He had suffered and complained a good deal and some days it was all he could do to drag himself about. Stopping or lifting caused him to suffer more intensely. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended to him and he procured them. They soon helped him and by the time he had taken the contents of two boxes he was completely rid of the trouble. I have never heard him complain of a symptom of kidney trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Nightingales Under a Ban. It is said that no nightingales sing in Havering England. Legend has it that the singing of the birds disturbed the devotions of Edward the Confessor when at his Havering palace, and he therefore placed them under a ban from which they have never recovered.

WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS.

The evacuation of state troops from the night rider district has been going on for several days and by today practically all of the soldiers will have returned to their homes. The Pineville company from Hickman and Cadiz were the first to arrive here Saturday morning and left on an evening train for Pineville, reaching home Sunday night. They have been on duty in this end of the state for six or eight months.

Capt. Utley's detachment of 15 Madisonville men came in from Gray Sunday and practically all of the camps excepting two have been broken up and the troops sent home. This is military headquarters and after depositing their camping outfits here they were sent home. Later their equipments will be returned to Frankfort, unless they should be needed again.

There is a feeling generally that the soldiers will not be needed again in this country. There are now no independent tobacco houses operating here and there seems to be but little bad feeling remaining between the country and the town. The people of the country at last understand that Hopkinsville has all along shown a most friendly feeling towards them. The banks have accommodated association members as far as they could, the merchants have extended credit in many instances and no unkind word has appeared in any of the papers, even when attempts were made in some quarters to misrepresent and to create prejudice. The city itself has exempted from taxation tobacco stores in the city for nearly a year, valued at the time of the assessment period at perhaps a half million dollars. When it is realized that the taxes on $500,000 amount to $7,500, the farmers can better understand the liberal spirit the city of Hopkinsville has shown in exempting all of this property from taxation, and the same policy will be pursued in the future. It is not believed that any formidable movement against the city could be worked up now. Even the fear of prosecution no longer disturbs the night riders, for reasons probably well understood by their friends. The only cases on the docket here were carried over until next March, and the last grand jury returned no new indictments. It is not believed that any further attempts to prosecute the raiders will be made for at least a year, or until conditions are changed.

In view of all these facts, the people of Hopkinsville do not entertain much apprehension of trouble. It is further believed that Gov. Willson has some well formed purpose in putting the lawless elements on their good behavior at this time and that if further outrages occur he will try some entirely different tactics in dealing with the outlaws.

An exchange says the expression "Mind your p's and q's" is from the French, in the time of Louis XIV. The dancing masters in instructing their pupils to make the low bows without moving their feet or disarranging their queues would say "Mind your p's and q's," p's meaning feet.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the south, than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Chas. & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. He has always been an active Mason and is regarded as an authority on Masonic law. He is a past grand master of Kentucky.

Judge Charles E. Booe, charged with defrauding the State by false vouchers, forgery and obtaining money by false token, waived examination at Frankfort Saturday and was held to the grand jury under a bond of $5,000. M. H. Thatcher, State Inspector, filed an itemized list of Judge Booe's pecuniations during his term as Claim Clerk under Auditor James. It is now said that Booe came to Kentucky from Indiana 19 years ago, with a record for dishonesty in public office.

J. F. Land, formerly with the Michigan Telephone Company, Detroit, and an expert throughout the country in his business, has begun the manufacture of a device which will answer the calls of telephones when the party called is out. After all the Kentuckian was right when it announced the sale of the Owensboro tobacco pool on Tuesday. The information came from such a reliable inside source that we could not understand the denial of Wednesday. This, however, was explained by the official announcement Thursday that the deal had gone through. The Kentuckian was right in the beginning, but was three days ahead of the officials in giving out the news.

Twenty-one of the twenty-seven speakers who will take the stump in Kentucky this week for the greatest campaign for an educational revival the State has ever known, gathered in the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. G. Crabbe Saturday and discussed plans and mapped out measures which are calculated to bring the great cause they will advocate close to the hearts of the people. The speakers assigned to this district will be here Saturday.

At Flemingsburg Harry Morgan, charged with burning buildings belonging to Dr. W. B. McClure and stabbing Thomas Daugherty, was held to the grand jury. While the trial of Harry Morgan was in progress four prisoners charged with felony escaped from the jail. All are still at large.

It was authoritatively announced Saturday that Frank H. Hitchcock would be Postmaster General in Judge Taft's Cabinet. The other selections will not be made known until the President-elect is ready to announce his official family.

Trusts That Pension Employees.

(Burton J. Hendrick in the Christmas McClure's.)

Since 1903 the Standard Oil Company has generously treated its inactive men, if retired them on half pay at the age of sixty-five and on quarter pay at seventy.

Since 1900 many of the subsidiary companies forming the United States Steel corporation have granted pensions; the directors have now under consideration a plan, which will probably become effective next year, for an automatic pension scheme affecting all their 200,000 employees.

BURTON J. HENDRICK.

The unpopularity of the Powder Trust is so great that its president was recently obliged to drop out of the R-publican National campaign; this corporation, however, retires at fair wages its used-up men. Those forced to pay exorbitant rates for gas and electricity in New York City may find some consolation in the fact that part of the money goes to pension the septuagenarian gas man. Bad as is Thomas F. Ryan's Metropolitan Street Railway Company, its conductors and motormen are able to look forward to the time when they can retire at half pay. Even many of the great financial houses and insurance companies that have been recently subjected to general criticism keep their faithful old employees on the payrolls.

KISSING STIRS CHURCH

So Much of It That Deacon May Publish Names.

Connellsville, Pa., Nov. 29.—There has been too much kissing going on in the Free Methodist church at Stauffer, according to the Rev. M. F. Shaffer, the pastor, who gave orders last Sunday from the pulpit that it must stop.

Aaron Gadd, a deacon and leader in the church, went even further at a special meeting last night and threatened to make public the names of all the members of the congregation he had seen spooning and kissing there. The deacon says he has a long list. The porch of the church and the road in front have also been favorite trysting places.

The pastor's announcement was caused by the actions of a young couple who during a recent service would steal a kiss every time the congregation bowed in prayer.

"INSURGENT"

Members of Tobacco Association Pass Resolutions.

Princeton, Ky., Nov. 28.—The Caldwell County Tobacco Association, "insurgents," met at the courthouse this afternoon. The meeting was presided over by former Police Judge R. K. Morgan. Short talks were made by S. D. Dodge and J. H. Hawthorn, also by Hugh Lyon, of Edwsville. The same resolutions were read and adopted as those recently adopted at Kuttawa, Lyon county. There were no objections to the resolutions, and as a result the vote on them was declared unanimous and everything passed off quietly.

This year's crop is the last of the three years association pledge. The resolution adopted to-day does not affect this year's crop or that portion of the 1907 crop now unsold, which means that there will be no hitch between the association members and the insurgents.

NOT A PARTICLE OF SKIN ON BODY

What Case of Eczema Doctor Had Seen in 40 Years—For Six Months Father Expected His Baby to Die—Blood Oozed Out All Over Her Body—Had to Be Wrapped in Silk and Carried on a Pillow—Now She is Perfectly Cured.

DOCTOR RECOMMENDED CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My little girl was born two weeks before her time and my wife died four hours after the birth of our child and I had to raise the baby on artificial foods. Six months after birth she broke out and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked after her to give her a pure complexion. James J. A. The Association stands ready to carry out all its obligations to your people.

Ans. We could not without destroying the Association or radically changing its methods of business.

The Lesson.
"Oh, mother," said a small girl, "our French governess called me a fool to-day."
"You must be mistaken, my dear," replied her shocked mother. "No lady would do such a thing."
"But she did, mother," said the child, almost in tears. "I heard her quite plainly."
"I cannot believe your governess would use such language. You must have been very naughty to make her so angry."
"No, mother, I was quite good," replied the child, much hurt at being doubted. "We were having a dictation lesson, and when she had read a few words she looked straight at me and said 'Fool' (fool) stop."

A Bird That Bestows a Curse.
The stonchion is one of the "soft billed" birds that remain with us all the year. It is so called from the similarity of its alarm note and the striking together of two pebbles. In some parts of Scotland it is supposed to contain a drop of the devil's blood, and its nest is never taken because of the curse it is always promising.—Country Life.

Second—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.

Third—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.

Fourth—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.

SCARLET FEVER.

A scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that sanitation, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a herbage from the roots of the earth. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antidote which will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many, but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devoted their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Dellator.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very good," said Freda Sims, "I picked it up in the attic by the north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the power was so wide and full of wonders, so when 'Heater' was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new."
"Yes," she says. "Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that it seemed to be right beside them. And I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!"
"And actually that was all the woman had seen? With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes!"—Christian Uplook.

Fiddled Into Office.

Lossing relates that in 1848 he met at Oswego, N. Y., Major Cochran, then nearly eighty years of age, a son-in-law of General Philip Schuyler, who told the story of his election to congress during the administration of the elder Adams. A vessel was to be launched one of the jobs in the town of New York, and people came from afar to see it. The young folks gathered there, determined to have a dance at night. There was a fiddle, but no fiddler. Young Cochran was an amateur performer, and his services were demanded. He gratified the joyous company, and at the supper table one of the gentlemen remarked, in commendation of his talents, that he was "fit for congress." The matter was talked up, and he was nominated and elected a representative in congress for the district then comprising the whole of New York west of Schenectady. He always claimed to have "fiddled himself into congress."

A Worthy Desire.

An ambitious young Chicagoan called upon a publisher of novels in that city, to whom he imparted confidentially the information that he had decided to "write a book" and that he would be pleased to afford the publisher the chance to bring it out.
"May I venture to inquire as to the nature of the book you propose to write?" asked the publisher very politely.
"Oh," came in an offhand way from the aspirant for fame, "I think of doing something on the line of 'Les Miserables,' only livelier, you know!"—Lippincott's.

Spilled His Appetite.

CAPT. RANKIN DIED

Testimony Before Grand Jury By One Of His Murderers.

39 MORE INDICTMENTS.

Tom Johnson Presented On Charge of Assault With Deadly Weapon.

Union City, Tenn., Nov. 30.—The fifteen indictments found Saturday include only the eight men in jail at Nashville, and each one is charged with the murder of Capt. Rankin, except Tom Johnson. He is charged, however, with the capital offense also, of assault with mailed weapon, on Fred Burdick and Walter Pleasant.

Thirty-nine more indictments will be presented to-day. They were not secured Saturday because of lack of time.

One man's testimony before the grand jury gave in detail the death scene of Capt. Rankin.

When he had been pulled up once by the rope the night riders let him down and told him they would give him five minutes in which to pray. He told them he did not need the five minutes' prayer for himself, as he had been praying for twenty years. When they again made their generous offer he again declined, but he said he would give five minutes to them, as they needed it and he did not.

They again pulled him up by the rope, shot him in three different parts of the body, and knocked out his front teeth with the butt end of a pistol.

The Mood of a Maid.

By CECILY ALLEN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The girl leaned forward after scanning the road in both directions and touched the chauffeur's arm. The great crimson car came to a panting, deliberate standstill.

The girl did not wait for the chauffeur to help her, but sprang lightly to the road and vanished into the woodland on the right. The chauffeur turned the car as if his thoughts were concentrated on the necessity of making the smallest possible turn in time of safety, in order to be prepared in time of emergency. And then the great crimson car shot back in the direction from whence it had come.

Safely acrossed by the underbrush, the girl found a clearing in the woodland and sat down on a moss grown log. Doffing the unworn slawings of chiffon from her hat, baring a face delicate and sensitive as the anemone opening at her feet.

She drew off her gloves and felt of the velvety moss on the old log, then stooped to gather flowers. Finally, the blossoms forgotten in her lap, she leaned forward, her elbows on her knees, her chin propped in the palms of her hands, watching the woodland life around her.

Chipmunks and squirrels scampered along the edge of the clearing. Where the sun shone upon a tangle of fern and jack in the pulpit two robins perched pertly on dry twigs and discussed the troubles of May moving day. From the shadows of the wood beyond came the persistent hammering of a woodpecker.

Beyond the screen of underbrush automobiles and smart turn-outs spun on toward the race track, where the world of fashion was foregrounding. An hour passed, and then at the distant wall of a peculiar siren whistle the girl sprang to her feet, dropped her lapful of flowers and ran to the roadside.

Bearing down upon her was a crimson car, twin of the one which had dropped her so unceremoniously an hour earlier.

But the resemblance stopped with the car. The chauffeur in the first car had worn a spick span uniform in tan color from the tips of his highly polished boots to the crown of his heavy cap. The man in this car wore a disreputable looking storm coat of English cloth, a shabby visor cap and a pair of goggles which had certainly seen more prosperous vicinities.

He was searching along at a fine pace. But the girl calmly stepped to the edge of the road and waved a demure hand—a bare hand at that. The machine moved down, and the man made preparations to descend, as became one hailed by a maiden in distress. But again the girl raised a demure hand.

"My car met with an accident: I thought perhaps—I am very anxious to reach Dalton this afternoon. Perhaps you were going that way. Would you give me a lift?"

She looked up eagerly into his startled face. Then the man smiled discreetly, swallowed a smile and sprang from the machine.

"I was—or thought I was—going to the races, but I am sure it will be much more pleasant at—er—what is Dalton you said?"

The man's accent was English. The admiration in his eyes was the sort that knows no nationality. The girl dashed beneath it and sprang into the car before the astonished man could assist her.

For a few minutes the car ran on in silence. Then the girl spoke abruptly.

"Let us take this road, the road a mile farther we will strike the old Dalton turnpike. There we will not meet."

"I understand," he interrupted gravely. And the great car swerved into the crossroad, running through a stretch of woodland.

Again the girl seemed plunged in thought. But at last the man remarked a bit lamely:

"Perfect day, isn't it?"

The girl looked up at him shyly. Her eyes were soft and luminous.

"Oh, I have had the most beautiful hour there in the woods. I've never seen anything half so wonderful as those little creatures doing just as they pleased. Just as soon as the birds tired of one tree or bush or fern they flew off to another. They did not mind me nor each other. Just think of being the that all your life?"

The man looked at her curiously, as if she were a new specimen of the genus feminine and entirely worthy of deep study.

"It is all so different from what I've been used to. I wake up knowing that Marie will be right there with my chocolate. And then will come cards and mail and flowers and Aunt Margaret. Of course Aunt Margaret is a dear, but ten years of doing things right under Aunt Margaret's eyes are very tiresome. Don't you think so?"

"An quite sure it must be a terrible bore," replied the man gravely.

"And then seeing the same people everywhere you go and being quite sure that you will see no one that Aunt Margaret has not seen first."

The man bit his lip at this naive confession.

"Do you know," said the girl, waxing confidential as the car lapsed once over the trap hung road, "I've always dreamed of having a man come to my rescue just like this—er—man I had never known—a man quite different from any of the men I have ever met."

She paused, and the man at her side studied her with grave eyes.

"Now, there was Beattie Stewart—she married Jack Coghlan. They'd gone to kindergarten, and dancing school together. And then she'd gone to all his college 'proms' and the same cotillions. Why, it was just like marrying some one who had lived in your own family always."

"And now they're bored to death with each other. They had a honeymoon at Monte Carlo, where they had been the year before on the Borden-Jones yacht, and they came back to the same old round of teas and dinners and dances. There was no romance in that."

The man shook his head.

"But Harriet, one of our parlor maids, married a million way out west. She met him by answering an advertisement in a matrimonial paper. He came east after her, and she wrote Marie that they were awfully happy. He had never been married before."

The man swung back his head and laughed, and the girl laughed with him. Then suddenly she clutched his sleeve.

"You've passed the Dalton turnpike, and I must be at Stoneysold for lunch."

"We are not going to Dalton," said the man calmly. "I've been out this way before. Just two miles beyond we will cross the state line."

"But why? Oh, I must go on to Stoneysold for lunch."

The man ignored the remark.

"And across the state line, I understand, there is no need of a license."

"Oh," said the girl very softly, and the great car stopped beneath the arch of freshly leaved trees.

He flung aside his heavy driving gloves and took the delicate, sensitive face of the girl between his two hands.

"Will you, dearest?"

Her eyes stopped dancing and turned wondrous tender.

"Oh, I hoped you'd understand, but I did not dream!"

"Will you, dearest?" persisted the man.

She lowered her long lashes over the eyes into which he tried so hard to gaze. Later she murmured from the shelter of his arms: "But I want to tell you the truth, Lester. I never loved you till just this minute. And I had made up my mind that if you did not understand I would just—"

He threw on the power.

"Let us get across the line quick before you change your mind again."

Hiram Manning, justice of the peace in the -th district, plucked at the end and regarded the couple doubtfully.

"I'd like to oblige you, but this ain't no Greta Green, an'—well, I don't mind tellin' you that the girl looks un-der more prosperous vicinities."

"But I am not," protested the girl. "I am twenty."

"Not castin' no reflections, ma'am, but I'd like some proof."

The girl and the man looked at each other; then the girl's troubled glance traveled to the table, and a smile brightened her face.

"Isn't that proof enough that my family are willing?"

She held the paper toward the justice with the face of a girl peering straight from the printed page.

The justice looked from the picture to the girl, and his face alternately flushed and paled.

"Och all homelocks, you're Banker Cladin's girl, and he—be—"

"Yes," said the girl, her eyes dancing. "He is Lord Grammont. But, indeed, he's very nice in spite of the fact," she added as Justice of the Peace Manning continued to stare incredulously at the man's slim figure in his disreputable motoring apparel.

"You wait a bit. I'll be right back," said the justice, with sudden accession of spirit, and he started for the door.

The girl and man started after him. "You are not going to telephone to town—to those wretched reporters. Please, please, let us be married quite alone, with just some of your family for witnesses," cried the girl.

"Yes," added the man nervously. "We've just run away from all that sort of thing—pills, don't you know. Please let us get away quietly. Don't telephone. I beg of you."

"Telephone nothin'," exclaimed the justice heatedly. "I'm just 'goin' to put on my Sunday suit. Never expect to marry a millionaire's girl and a lord again in my time."

It was by his graceful execution of a dance that young Hiram first captivated the heart of Queen Elizabeth, says Edward Scott in his book on "Dancing in All Ages." He had been brought up to the law and entered court, as his enemy, Sir John Perrot, used to say, "by the galleys," as his first appearance there was on the occasion of a mask ball, and her majesty was so struck by his good looks and activity that she made him one of her band of pensioners, who were considered the handsomest men in England. It is said that the favors which the virgin monarch extended to her new favorite excited the jealousy of the whole court, especially that of the Earl of Leicester, who, thinking to depreciate the accomplishments of the young lawyer, offered to introduce to Elizabeth a notice a professional dancer whose salutory performances were considered far more wonderful than Hiram's. To this suggestion, however, the royal lady, with more vehemence than elegance, exclaimed: "Fisht! I will not see your man. It is his trade."

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is an inspiration? Pa—An inspiration, my son, is the sudden recollection of some one who will probably stand for a touch—Kansas City Newsbook.

Don't You Feel Well?

Ache All Over?

Feverish? Feel as though your blood was hot? Cold feet? Headache? Those warning signals which indicate that a bad cold or a fever is coming on? Don't get discouraged, but go home. On the way, stop in any drug store and get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When you get home, take a hot bath or a hot foot bath, go to bed, cover up warmly, take a dose of the Golden Medical Discovery, in the morning another dose, and you will feel better. You will not have to continue many doses before you are well. If you still persist in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, you will find improvement in your general constitution, appetite and health. Your liver will become active and throw off the poisons from the system.

Get as near to Nature's way as you can. There's a reason. Vegetable foods are usually good for the health. The human economy digests and assimilates them best. In disease, a remedy made up of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone Root, Black Cherry bark, Mandarin root and bloodroot, such as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, is positive rest and safety. It assimilates in the stomach and taken up by the blood, therefore it is the most potent means which can be employed for the regaining of lost health.

They are formed by millions of everything we eat, drink and wear. The air is filled with them. Medical science has proven in the past few years that nearly every disease is a germ disease. Such disease germs enter into the blood in two ways, either through the lungs or stomach. DEATH LIST OF AT LEAST 138

Twenty-five Dead Bodies
Are Taken From Wrecked
Mine.

VICTIMS MAY BE 200.

Victims of Marianna Disaster
Are All Badly Mutilated.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 30.—Twenty-five bodies, all but two of them horribly mutilated and a number of them dismembered, were yesterday taken from the mine of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal Company at Marianna, forty miles south of here, where an explosion occurred Saturday, killing many men and casting into gloom what was until then considered a model mining town of the world.

There is no doubt that the death list will reach 138 men. Officials of the company, who last night stated that not over 125 had been killed, tonight admit that 138 men went down the shaft to work Saturday morning. According to miners and others familiar with the number of men generally employed in the mine, the death list will exceed the company's estimate by at least fifty. From no sources can an accurate statement as to the fatalities be secured, and it is possible that the exact number of men killed will never be known. Up to darkness to-night twenty-five bodies had been brought to the surface in an iron bucket. Arms, legs or heads were missing from some and the trunks of others were burned, bruised and cut.

NIGHT RIDER LETTERS.

Threats Received By Hon.
W. R. Howell.

Hon. W. R. Howell, who lives at Caledonia, Trigg county, near Julien, received two letters last week signed "Night Riders" making threats against him, it is said.

One threatened personal violence if he did not get rid of some negroes on his place and the other ordered him not to let a white man who lives near him come on his place any more.

Mr. Howell is at a loss to know who it is that is writing the letters to him.

He was until five years ago Commonwealth's attorney of this district, but now lives on his farm just over the Trigg county line.

BURN TO GROUND

David's Mine at Uniontown is Destroyed by Fire.

Uniontown, Ky., Nov. 30.—The Davids coal mine buildings burned Saturday with a loss of $20,000. Fire started in the very top of the tippie and worked downward with great rapidity. During the height of the fire one of the boilers blew up hurling the other boiler forty feet. Houses were shaken on their foundations and window lights broken by the score. Luckily, the flying shower of brick, timber and scraps of the boiler plate struck no one.

20-YEAR RECORD.

Over 30,000 Kentucky Couples
Granted Divorces.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Nearly one million divorces were granted in the United States in the score of years ended in 1906. Of these 39,641 were registered in the State of Kentucky, 30,447 in Tennessee and 60,721 in Indiana.

While popular impression, owing to liberality of divorce laws has stamped South Dakota as being the Mecca of estranged couples, it in reality ranks far down in the list, Illinois, with 82,209, exceeding any other state, with Ohio second and Texas third. The divorce rate in Kentucky in 1900 was 84 in every 100,000 of population. The divorces granted in the state from 1887 to 1888 was 10,248.

DIAMOND STUD

Presented to Dr. Jo. M. Ferguson
by Asylum
Officials.

Dr. Jos. M. Ferguson, first assistant physician at the Western Asylum, will leave for his former home at Central City to-day, after a service of four years and three months, in every respect creditable to himself, his party and the State.

He will be succeeded by Dr. B. A. Campbell, formerly of Indiana, but now of Bowling Green, a Republican recently appointed by the Board of Control. He comes without experience in asylum work.

Dr. Ferguson was very popular as an official and his departure is the cause of many expressions of regret.

On Friday night the officials and employees of the asylum, together with some of Dr. Ferguson's former Democratic associates among the Asylum officials, presented him with an elegant diamond stud, worth $100.

The presentation speech was made by Mr. Lucian H. Davis, former treasurer, at the Dance Hall on the asylum grounds, between sets while the regular weekly dance was being given.

Mr. Davis' speech was expressed in touching and appropriate words, expressing the high regard felt for Dr. Ferguson by all his old associates and the deep regret felt that the State is to be deprived of his valuable services.

Dr. Ferguson was taken completely by surprise, but responded feelingly and with many expressions of his gratitude. Most of the officials of the Asylum were present and all joined in the expressions of good will that were showered upon the popular young doctor.

ALCOHOLISM

Causes Death of Colored Barber and Musician.

William Russell, col., died at an early hour Saturday in a house on Central avenue east. Corner Allen's worth held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict to the effect that death was due to alcoholism. Russell had been drinking for several days and Friday night went to the house of an acquaintance and asked the privilege of lying down. About 3 o'clock in the morning the inmates heard Russell struggling in his sleep and they sent for a doctor. When the physician arrived the man was dead. He was a barber and musician and came here from Trenton, Tenn., several months ago. He was about 25 years old.
